

Inauguration of Jerry C. Lee set for Friday

Jerry C. Lee will be inaugurated the sixth president of Gallaudet College this coming Friday, Oct. 19. The inauguration will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Field House.

Hundreds of delegates and special guests are expected to join faculty, staff and students for the inauguration. Both the Department of Safety and Security and the Gallaudet College Television Studio are making arrangements to help accommodate the large number of people expected on campus that day.

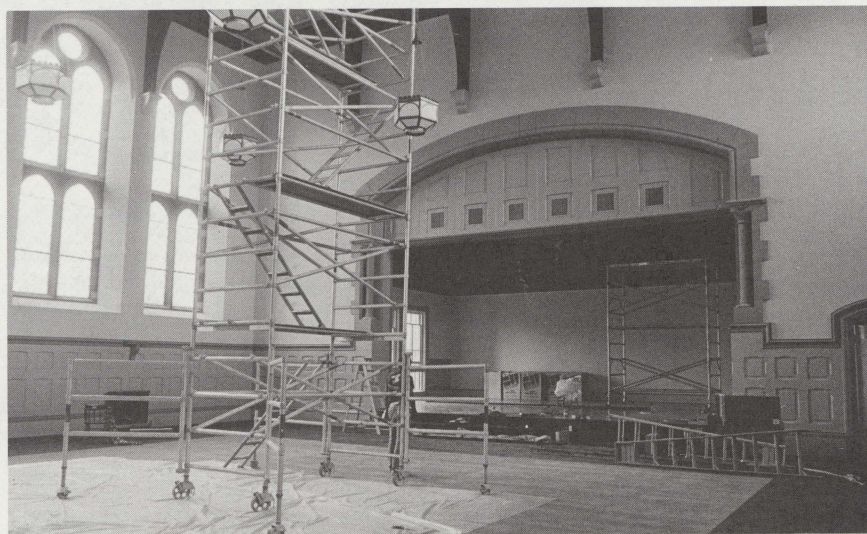

The Department of Safety and Security is encouraging employees to carpool or use public transportation Friday. Four parking lots on the main campus will be reserved for delegates and program and special guests. The parking lot behind the Field House, the Hall Memorial Building parking lot, the parking lot near College Hall and the lot behind Chapel Hall will be closed to employees. Those lots will be manned by members of the campus security force to ensure that only vehicles with special permits park in the lots.

Zone restrictions will be suspended that day and the Transportation Department will move its fleet of buses from Lot E. The Transportation Department will also provide shuttle service from the overflow lot off Sixth Street to the main campus during the day.

Because more people are expected to attend the inauguration than can be seated in the Field House, the Gallaudet College Television Studio will telecast the inauguration proceedings to the overflow crowd.

Workers put the finishing touches on the newly refurbished chapel at Chapel Hall, where a president's reception is scheduled Friday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. The reception is the first event to be held in the chapel since it was refurbished earlier this year.

Friends remember Dorothy Hamberg

Caring, concerned, loyal, sometimes irreverent, and always committed to her work. Those were just some of the ways in which friends of Dorothy Hamberg described her during a memorial service held on campus last week.

Students, faculty, staff and members of Miss Hamberg's family gathered at Elstad Auditorium Oct. 9 to remember the late associate professor in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics. She had just completed her twentieth year at Gallaudet when she died in June at the age of 58.

Active as a teacher and coach, Miss Hamberg also served on a number of campus committees and was instrumental in bringing the Personal Discovery Program to Gallaudet. She also started the Children's Summer Instructional Program for the children of students, faculty and staff. It was just one of her many campus endeavors in which she invested much energy.

"She was an excellent advocate and doer, and brought incredible energy to her tasks," stated Provost John Schuchman, who added that he would remember Miss Hamberg "with fondness and good humor."

Catherine Ingold, director of the Honors Program, noted that Miss Hamberg had "enormous dreams for Gallaudet."

"She was as committed to quality as anyone I've ever seen. She always cared and never did anything halfway—and didn't like to see others do things halfway." The best memorial the Gallaudet community could give Miss Hamberg, Ingold said, "is to bring the big dreams she had for this place to reality."

A student of hers told of how he was doing just that. Paul Roulit, a senior majoring in physical education, said that he started hearing rumors about Dorothy Hamberg's classes shortly after he decided to major in physical education during his sophomore year. He was told he would be "in trouble" if he took one of her courses. He accepted the challenge and signed up for a class.

He related his feeling of shock when on the first day of class Miss Hamberg asked him who he was and what he was doing in her class. He responded that he planned to major in physical education and become a teacher. She accepted him into the class.

She served as his supervisor during Roulit's first year of student teaching. "I was frustrated (that year)," Roulit said. "But she helped me control my emotions and explained the ways of teaching. If not for her, I wouldn't be a successful teacher," he contended, saying that he has promised himself that "for

Research Institute conducting literacy study of teen-agers

The Gallaudet Research Institute has been awarded a grant of more than $673,500 to conduct a three-year literacy study of deaf adolescents.

The National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke, an office within the National Institute of Health, awarded the Research Institute $673,655 to conduct the study.

Donald F. Moores, director of the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development, is the principal investigator of the project which is entitled "Factors Predictive of Reading and Writing Skills in the Congenitally Deaf."

The study began last month and will examine factors predictive of reading and writing achievement in deaf high school students between the ages of 16 and 18. The study will focus on adolescents in two groups: those with deaf parents who have been exposed to some form of manual communication from birth and those with hearing parents who have been in total communication programs throughout school.

The first one and one-half years of the study will be devoted to developing and testing evaluation instruments for use in assessing reading and writing skills and expressive and receptive communication through ASL, signed English and oral-aural forms of communication.

Moores expects that another year of the study will be spent on the actual testing of students from MSSD, the American School for the Deaf, the California School for the Deaf in Fremont, the Maryland School for the Deaf and the Texas School for the Deaf. At least 65 deaf children of deaf parents and 65 children in total communication programs will be tested, Moores said.

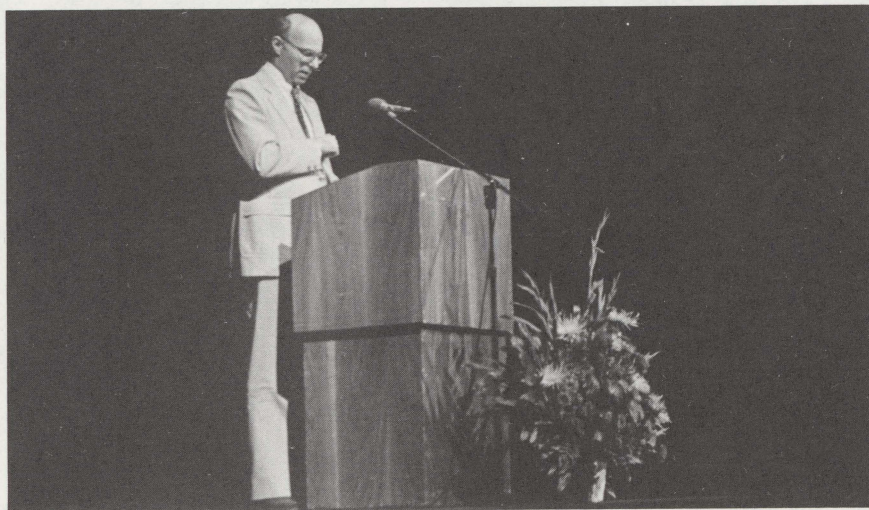

The final phase of the project will involve the analysis of data and the preparation of reports.

The study will supplement and allow Gallaudet to build upon ongoing research on a long-term study of the development of literacy being conducted by Carolyn Ewoldt of the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development and a study of programs for deaf students in public schools begun two years ago by Moores.

"This study falls into the framework of what we've already been doing," Moores stated.

Also working on the project with

Library Bits & Pieces

Book sale

by Steven Frank

The College Library will hold its "Fall Classic" book sale from Monday, Oct. 22 to Wednesday, Oct. 24. Sale items will be located in the lounge area on the upper level.

The book sale will include hardback and paperback books, magazines and more. History books and children's books are only two of the subject areas. A special treat will be the "grab bag," which will contain recently-published books as well as books of popular interest.

Prices for the hardback and paperback books and magazines are the same as last year — 50 and 25 cents respectively. The grab bag costs 75 cents.

All in all, there should be approximately 2,000 books and magazines from which to choose.

Because prices are low, we urge you to come early and choose your books and/or magazines from the display.

Funds collected from the book sale will be used to help publish a book entitled "International Directory of Periodicals Related to Deafness" which I am compiling. It will be published early next year. The money will also be used to advertise and print the document.

Book sale hours on Monday, Oct. 22 are 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.; on Tuesday, Oct. 23, 8 a.m. to midnight; and on Wednesday, Oct. 24, 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Adult education week activities set

The United States Senate has designated the week of Oct. 15 through 21 National Adult Continuing Education Week. Fourteen states are planning various types of educationally-related activities that week to celebrate the recognition of adult education.

A week of special events has been planned in the Washington, D.C. area by a committee comprised of representatives from area colleges, universities and adult education programs. The theme of the week's activities is "Education for Tomorrow's Opportunities."

The kick-off event for National Adult Education Week will be held at the Western Plaza on Pennsylvania Avenue across from the National Theatre from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 15.

Approximately 25 adult education programs will display materials and share information. Opening remarks will be interpreted by Janet Bailey, president of Sign Language Associates, who will be donating her services. She will also provide a short sign/song performance.

The general public is invited to come and learn about the adult education opportunities available in the Washington area. A special invitation is extended to the Gallaudet community.

For more information, call Nancy Pollock at x5649.

Conference planned

The Middle Atlantic Library Conference will be held Oct. 22-24 in Baltimore, MD.

Any persons who wish to display materials from their departments should send information to or contact Pete Moran at x5928 no later than Oct. 17.

Amnon Damti and Esti Nadler dance "Reminiscences" in Israel's Moshe Efrati Kol Demama Dance Company, the world's only professional dance ensemble combining deaf and hearing dancers. Kol Demama, which is Hebrew for "sound and silence," will give a benefit performance at the Kennedy Center in Washington Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. Two other performances are scheduled for the Kennedy Center — Oct. 30 at 7:30 p.m. A lecture/demonstration will also be given at the Kennedy Center on Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 2 p.m.

Merging of offices creates new unit

The Office of Business Services and the Physical Plant merged into one administrative unit as of Oct. 1. The new unit is known as the Office of Business and Operations Services.

The organizational change was announced in a recent memorandum from James B. Barnes, vice president for Administration and Business. Daniel C. Bryant has been named the director of the new area.

Business and Operations Services contains the following departments and functions—contracts, purchasing, food services, telecommunications, transportation, the bookstore, the post office, Northwest Campus services, property management, facilities management, risk management, legal liaison activities, design and construction and physical plant.

Charles G. Mann has been appointed to the position of manager of Auxiliary Services (post office, bookstore, food service and Northwest Campus services); Gail Levo has been named manager of Support Services (physical plant); P. Wayne Davis is now the manager of Maintenance Services (physical plant); and Ernest Spriggs is the new assistant director of the Physical Plant. Manfred Klatt is the acting manager of Design and Construction.

The other managers within the Physical Plant and within the old Business Services departments remain the same. Dan Kirby is still manager of Contracts and Purchasing; Fred Kendrick retains his position as manager of transportation while Michael Southers, Ron Sutcliffe and Peter Goodman continue in their positions as manager of Telecommunications Services, property specialist and facilities coordinator, respectively. In the Physical Plant areas, Eddie Adgebite remains the manager of Custodial Services, Ray Cook still runs Utility Services and Larry Ott continues as the manager of Grounds.

The Internal Auditing Department will now be under the direct supervision of the vice president for Administration and Business. The office will continue to be housed in College Hall, Room 306.

Telephone numbers for each of the managers listed above can be found in the new campus telephone directory.

Rehabilitative Services

The deadline for applications to the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services under the Secondary Education and Transitional Services for Handicapped Youth Program is Dec. 7. This program supports research, development, demonstration, evaluation and other projects to improve secondary education and other services that assist handicapped youth in the transition from secondary school to postsecondary environments like competitive or supported employment.

Two priority areas are listed in the Sept. 28 Federal Register. The first, research projects in secondary education, focuses on secondary level programs for handicapped youth and is expected to receive approximately $1,900,000 for about 25 new research projects.

The second area, cooperative models for planning and developing transitional service, is expected to make awards to 13 new cooperative models.

For more information, call the Office of Sponsored Research at x5030 or Dr. William Halloran with the Office of Special Education Programs in the Department of Education at 732-1064.

Literacy research

Moore are: Ewoldt; Robert Johnson, chairman of the Department of Linguistics; Thomas Kluwin of the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development; David Knight of the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development; William McFarland, chairman of the Department of Audiology; and Donna Mertens of the Department of Educational Foundations and Research.

Ewoldt and Kluwin will work during the first year on different kinds of measures of reading and writing ability while Knight and Johnson will work on person-to-person communication. McFarland will work on measures of speech production and reception and Mertens on the research design and statistical analysis.

A related study is being conducted by the Central Institute of the Deaf. The Institute has received a contract to study literacy among a third group—deaf children of hearing parents educated through oral-only communication throughout their school years. That study will be conducted for three years, and Gallaudet will work with the Institute to try to implement similar research procedures.

Graduate School Information Day scheduled Oct. 18

The Counseling and Placement Center, a unit of Student Affairs, will sponsor the sixth annual Graduate School Information Day Thursday, Oct. 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Ely Center multipurpose room.

Representatives from various colleges and universities which offer graduate programs in fields related to deafness—education, rehabilitation, audiology, counseling, psychology, etc.—will be on hand that day to meet with students. In addition, materials will be available from other colleges and universities unable to send representatives to campus.

Students, faculty and staff members are welcome to attend. For more information, contact Karen Reidy at the Counseling and Placement Center at x5638.

Graduate school fair scheduled for Oct. 23-24 at GW

Gallaudet College is co-sponsoring a Graduate and Professional School Fair at George Washington University Oct. 23 and 24. Gallaudet is a co-sponsor with other area colleges and universities for the event which will give persons an opportunity to talk to more than 150 university representatives about graduate programs.

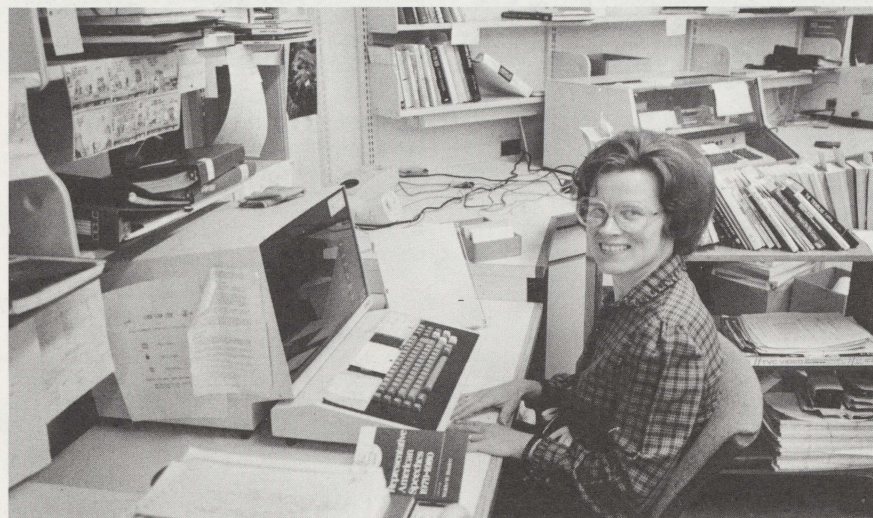

Shuttle bus service from Gallaudet will be provided both days and interpreters will be available.

The fair will be held both days on the third floor of Marvin Center at the George Washington University campus at 21st and H Streets, NW.

Law School representatives will be on hand Oct. 23 from 2 to 7 p.m. Panel discussions will focus on how to apply to law school (2:30 to 3:45 p.m.), with a videotaped replay shown from 5:30 to 6:45 p.m.) and careers in law (4 to 5:15 p.m.).

College and university representatives will be available Oct. 24 from 2 to 7 p.m. Panel discussions will be held on the subject of applying to and financing graduate school (2:30 to 3:45 p.m.), with a videotaped replay shown from 5:30 to 6:45 p.m.); and careers in business and management (4 to 5:15 p.m.).

For more information or to sign up for interpreter and/or transportation service, call the Counseling and Placement Center at x5638.

Seminar focuses on Orwell's "1984"

by Mike Kaika

Many colleges and universities around the country are offering special seminars studying George Orwell's book "1984" and Gallaudet is no exception. Once a week for three hours each session, five undergraduate students meet to discuss Orwell's work.

John Christiansen, chairman of the Department of Sociology and Social Work, serves as the seminar's coordinator. Christiansen, along with three other faculty members—Russ Olson of the Department of Government, John Van Cleve of the Department of History and King Jordan of the Department of Psychology—serve as rotating mentors at the weekly sessions.

Only students in the Honors Program can take the course which will fulfill one of two seminar requirements in the program.

"We have some great discussions in class on Orwell's book," Christiansen said. "The students not only read '1984' but also 'Animal Farm' and two articles related to these titles by other people."

Jerry Lee to be inaugurated Friday

will be set up at Elstad Auditorium and in Room LN 11 of the Learning Center. In addition, every television set connected to the College cable system will televise the inauguration on cable Channel 20.

Television coverage will begin at about 10:15 a.m. with the procession entering the Field House. All the faculty members from the College, Northwest Campus, MSSD and KDES will participate in the procession, along with Orwell, a novelist, suffered from poor health and died in 1950 at the age of 47. His last book was "1984" (originally titled "The Last Man in Europe") and was written in 1948.

The book is not a prediction of events but a warning of what might have happened by 1984 based on what Orwell saw in 1948, Christiansen explained. Orwell vividly describes how a totalitarian society can exist in a nation after a nuclear war, assuming people survive.

During the seminar session the four faculty mentors discuss their respective areas. Olson focuses on the power of government, Van Cleve examines revisionism and history in perspective, Jordan discusses the manipulation of the mind and Christiansen leads the discussion on the social effects of the computer revolution and mass communication. "After we have covered the material in-depth," said Christiansen, "we will discuss the topic, 'Are we approaching a totalitarian society in the U.S.?'" the Board of Trustees, alumni and student representatives, platform guests and delegates.

John Brademas, president of New York University, will give the keynote address at the inauguration. He will be introduced by Congressman David E. Bonior (D-MI), a member of Gallaudet's Board of Trustees.

Following Brademas' speech, Dr. Lee will be inducted as the College's sixth president. The induction will be conducted by Jane Bassett Spilman, chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Edward C. Merrill, Jr., the College's fourth president.

From 3:30 to 5 p.m., a president's reception is scheduled in the chapel of Chapel Hall. Although campus offices will not be closed for the entire day, the campus community is encouraged to view the inauguration in the morning and attend the reception at Chapel Hall in the afternoon.

All classes will be cancelled Friday.

Happy Hour cancelled

Happy Hour will be cancelled this Thursday, Oct. 18 because of installation activities. A reception for delegates and special guests will be held that evening at "Ole Jim." Happy Hour will be open Friday, Oct. 19 from 4 to 7 p.m.

Summer students complete Spanish studies in Mexico

Ten Gallaudet students spent the last three weeks of summer school in Mexico completing their foreign language requirement in Spanish.

The students attended the first three-week session of Spanish 201 at Kendall Green and then left for Mexico June 21 to attend classes in Cuernavaca for Spanish 202.

Classes were held in the mornings, with field trips scheduled in the afternoons and excursions to Taxco, Mexico City and Acapulco taken on weekends.

The course was taught by John T. Delaney, director of the Foreign Study Program, and Catherine Ingold, director of the Honors Program. The following students participated in the program: Cathy Burge, Minerva Choe, Cathy Edler, Steven Finland, Frank Gallo, Michael Harrington, Teresa Martin, Candace Moore, Kevin McCoy and Gail McFadden.

Gallaudet students can take Spanish 202 in Mexico and French 202 in Quebec, Canada. Students who wish to participate in the 1985 programs should contact Delaney in Hall Memorial Building, Room 177, x5387. Applications are now being accepted.

Copy of book depicting computer signs available

Computer Services has a copy of the first book of signs for persons in the computing field. The book, "Signs for Computing Terminology," was written by Steven Jamison and published by the National Association of the Deaf.

The book contains more than 600 signs which are illustrated by line drawings. The signs are listed alphabetically and include examples using the terms in a computer-related context.

All the signs included in the manual were selected and reviewed by experts in the computer field, many of whom are deaf.

The book is available for quick reference in User Services, Hall Memorial Building Room 118, and will be on sale at the Gallaudet bookstore.

Announcements

- The Gallaudet College Theatre Arts Department will present Tennessee Williams' play, "The Rose Tattoo" Nov. 9, 10, 16 and 17 at Elstad Auditorium. The performances will be directed by Gil Eastman, a professor in the Theatre Arts Department, and will begin each evening at 8 p.m.

Gallaudet students with identification will be admitted free and other students—including sign language students and children—will be charged $2.50. All other persons will be charged $4.50 for admission.

For reservations, call x5605 (voice) or x5608 (TDD).

- A volunteer assistant basketball coach is needed for the men's basketball team. Anyone interested in volunteering should contact Mike Rosenbaum at x5680 (voice and TDD).

Memorial held for Dorothy Hamberg

Hamberg, I'll always be a successful physical education teacher."

The Rev. LeRoy Schauer, United Methodist chaplain at Gallaudet, gave the benediction and the Gallaudet Dancers performed to the music "I Believe" and "The Lord's Prayer." Roxanna Sigafoose, a dorm counselor at the Maryland School for the Deaf, signed the song "I'll Be There When My Heart Is."

Photographs of Miss Hamberg were shown on a slide projector during those performances as they were during Henry Grau's signing of excerpts from the poem "Dorothy" written by Jean Berube, an assistant professor in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics.

The poem is 12 stanzas long, and concludes, "Rest in peace my friend. Our love goes with thee. Your spirit with us shall ever be. Your example we will try to always see. Your job well done, time to be with He."

'Cats' to be interpreted

Programs in Adult and Community Education (PACE) will sponsor a special interpreted performance of "Cats" at the National Theatre Thursday, Nov. 8.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. at the theatre located at 1321 E Street, NW. The cost is $32 per person. For more information, contact Todd Krock at x5597.

Football team loses to Anne Arundel

The Bison football team lost its second game of the season in its defeat to Anne Arundel Community College 42-9 Saturday, Oct. 6. Gallaudet could only manage one touchdown and one field goal while Anne Arundel had a field day crossing the goal line.

Another football game has been added to the Bison schedule. The team will play the Shenandoah Rangers at Hotchkiss Field this Saturday, Oct. 20 at 1 p.m.

The soccer team picked up another victory Oct. 5 against Shenandoah. The Bison booters won 1-0 to bring the team's overall record to 6-2. The game scheduled against Cecil College on Oct. 1 was cancelled.

In volleyball action, the women won three matches while losing only one. York College snapped the Bisonettes 10-game winning streak but the women bounced back and won three in a row—defeating Hood, Marymount and UDC. The volleyball team now has a 13-3 record.

Gallaudet Day Care Center continues to enroll children

The idea was discussed on campus for years.

Members of the campus community wanted a center at Gallaudet to care for young children whose parents either work or attend classes here.

They foresaw a center which would:

- provide a curriculum designed to meet the fundamental needs of the children and families;
- provide an environment enabling each child to grow as an individual;
- provide meals during the day;
- provide quality care for children at a reasonable price and the convenience of a location on the campus where their parents work or study.

The idea became a reality when the Gallaudet Day Care Center opened its doors this fall in the renovated Appleby Building at the corner of Florida Avenue and Sixth Street.

Run by a staff of certified teachers, the program is licensed by the Licensing and Certification Office of the District of Columbia Department of Human Resources. All seven of its teachers are certified in the field of education and bring to the center a wide range of educational expertise and experience in the fields of early childhood education and day care training.

Designed to meet the needs of parents concerned about quality care for their children, the center offers a comprehensive day care program for children between the ages of 2 and 6 as well as an after-school program for school-aged youngsters. The after-school program accepts children up to the age of 12 before and after school and on school holidays when the center is open. The after-school program is not, however, a drop-in program—and children must be registered to participate.

Open to both deaf and hearing children, the program follows an academically-oriented curriculum model which focuses on growth in the areas of language and cognition, gross and fine motor development and social-emotional and aesthetic development. The curriculum is designed to meet the individual needs of each child and children are encouraged to progress at their own rates.

In addition, the building and playground areas have been designed to foster and encourage an environment that will meet the curriculum goals and needs of the students.

The center is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., offering full-day and half-day programs. A weekly fee is charged for each child based on full-time or part-time enrollment.

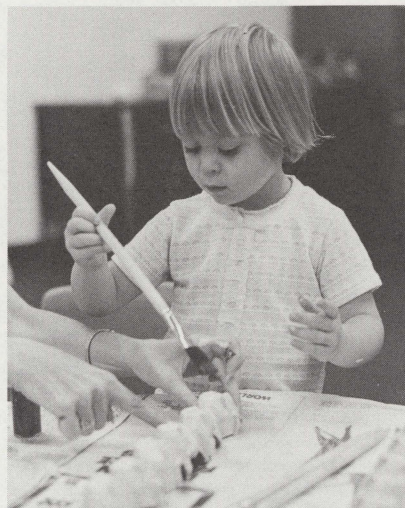

Open on those days in which the College and Pre-College are in session, the center observes the following holidays: New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, the day after Thanksgiving, Winter Break (all regularly-scheduled work days from Dec. 25 to Jan. 1), and Inauguration Day (every four years). The center follows the same inclement weather policy as does the College and Pre-College.

A self-supporting unit of Gallaudet, the day care center is licensed to care for 44 children between the ages of 22 months and 6 years.

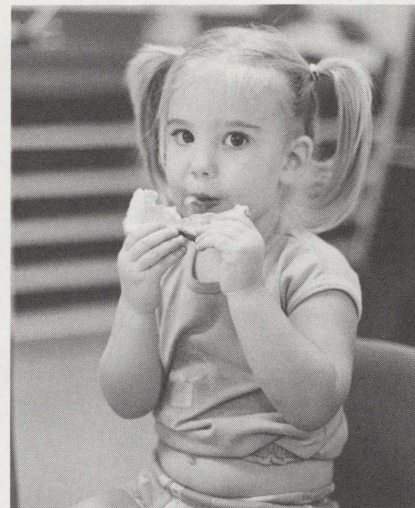

The current child/staff ratio is as follows:

- Eight children to two teachers for children 22 months to 2½ years;
- Sixteen children to two teachers for children 2½ to 3½ years;
- Twenty children to two teachers for children 3½ to 5 years.

Along with plans to expand its program offerings, the day care center staff hopes to expand on the number of children it can accommodate in the future.

The faculty

The Gallaudet Day Care Center, which began operation in September, is run by a staff of seven teachers, one of whom serves as the program coordinator/head teacher. Barbara Bennings, who has 15 years experience in early childhood programs, serves in that capacity. She is responsible for directing the activities of the day care center, which includes policy development, fiscal management and staff supervision.

All of the day care center teachers are certified and bring to the center a wide range of educational expertise and experience in the fields of early childhood education and day care training. Members of the day care center staff are pictured here.

Barbara Bennings has a master's of education degree from George Washington University and is now working on a doctorate in family counseling, which she will receive from GW.

Irene Schmalz has a doctorate in curriculum and instruction, a master's degree in elementary remedial education and a bachelor's degree in psychology.

Anne Bates has a bachelor of science degree from Purdue University in Indiana. She is now working toward a master of social work degree at Catholic University.

Stacy Carter earned her bachelor of science degree from the Hampton Institute in Hampton, VA. Her degree is in special education of the hearing impaired.

Timi Gray earned a bachelor of science degree in special education of the hearing impaired at the Hampton Institute in Hampton, VA.

Laural Brasel attended Gallaudet College, where she graduated with a degree in home economics. She worked in the home economics department at MSSD for three years.

Galinda Goss is a recent graduate of Gallaudet, having earned a bachelor's degree in theatre and drama from the College in 1981.

Center receives positive feedback

Although only in operation a little more than one month, the Gallaudet Day Care Center has already begun meeting its goals in the education and development of the children now enrolled in the program.

Parents are welcome to stop by the center any time to observe their children and the program in action. Comments and suggestions from parents are not only welcomed, but are encouraged. A sampling of some of those remarks follow:

- "(The staff) seems so friendly, patient and child-oriented. I feel that I'm leaving my child in a loving environment — which is one of my main concerns for a day care situation. I'm especially happy with my son's teachers."

- "(My son) is happier at Gallaudet's Day Care Center than at his former child care center."

- "The hours of operation are convenient for parents' schedules."

- "The breakfast program has helped tremendously as it takes the pressure off of trying to force him to eat a good breakfast so early in the morning."

- "(One of the benefits of the program is that) should an emergency arise, I could be at the scene at a moment's notice."

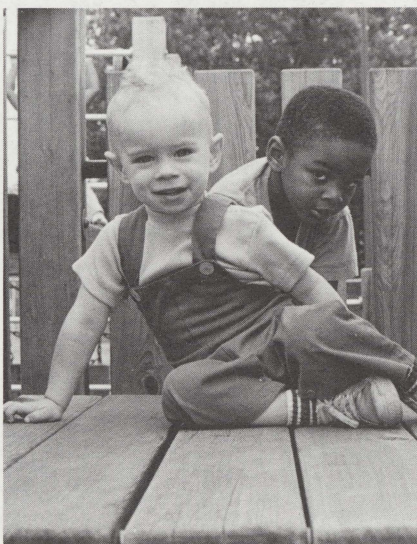

In talking about changes they have noticed in their children since enrolling them at the day care center, parents noted:

- "He seems to be expanding his vocabulary and sentence structure."

- "She has matured and she shows a great improvement in communication at home."

Day Care Center Registration Form

The Gallaudet Day Care Center currently has vacancies in its program and is therefore continuing to register children between the ages of 22 months and 6 years. The center can accommodate 44 children at this time.

Because the program is a self-supporting unit of the College, its survival is contingent upon enrollment. Enrollment is on a first-come first-served basis.

The registration form below should be completed and mailed to Barbara Bennings, program coordinator/head teacher of the Gallaudet Day Care Center, in Room 7 of College Hall or returned to the center at the Appleby Building.
